

Jill Ann Blumenfeld

Retired Luxury Retail Executive

ABOUT

Jill Ann Blumenfeld is an accomplished global luxury retail operations executive. Her unusual talent lies in her ability to translate a brand's DNA into a distinct retail customer experience which delivers sales, guest loyalty and profitability. After graduating from the Wharton School with a dual degree in Marketing and Management of Entrepreneurship, Jill worked for several international luxury brands in both the United States and Europe.

A person who embraces change, over the course of her career Jill never hesitated to take on new challenges for herself and her teams. This openness resulted in vast experience in recruiting and managing diverse and motivated organizations, as well as several major role changes for herself internationally.

For the last 7 years of her career before retiring in July 2020 to the south of France, Jill worked for Value Retail, owner of La Vallée Village located east of Paris. As Customer Experience Director for this 110 store luxury brands outlet shopping center, Jill created and implemented the center's Hospitality department, the first of its kind in an outlet mall environment.

I AM LOOKING TO MENTOR

People looking for a career change, navigating a difficult boss, or working in international cultural environments would benefit from Jill's over 40 year career, and direct American can do attitude.
